

THE CENTRAL RECORD.

THIRTY THIRD YEAR

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 6, 1922.

NUMBER 12.

The Spirit That Wins

The cultivation of a fraternal spirit has much to do with the success of a local community.

Where the population is limited the indifference or selfishness of a single individual exerts a depressing effect upon others, and this attitude of pessimism in time permeates the whole community. Men and women who really desire to advance the interests of themselves and their neighbors find it difficult to work to advantage when disaffected ones are continually throwing a wet blanket over every new project that is proposed.

Investigation and discussion are both commendable and desirable, but pessimistic remarks and pulling back in the community harness are on a par with a balky horse. They render more or less futile the efforts of those who would push forward to ultimate achievement.

A community of brothers working together in harmony is far better than one of opponents pulling in opposite directions.

COUNTY WARDS

Mentally Deficient People Now Are Wards of The County Instead of The State

More than 2,000 mentally defective persons, scattered in every county of the state, at midnight June 30th, became ward of the counties or of relatives instead of the state. At that hour the law appropriating $75 a year from the state treasury for their support became inoperative.

For more than a half of a century Kentucky has had what is known as the pauper idiot pension system, whereby pauper idiots who could not be accommodated at the state institute for the Feeble-minded in Frankfort, or who were not in a condition warranting their being sent to either of the three state hospitals, were partly maintained by the state. At the 1920 general assembly it was agreed to enlarge the state's facilities for handling idiots at the institute here. Purchase of a colony farm was authorized and money for the purpose appropriated.

No provision was made, however, for building and the pension system last session of the general assembly was continued for two years. At the economy was the watchword and no measure providing building was passed. The House of Representatives passed a bill continuing the pension system another two years, but it failed to pass the Senate and therefore did not become a law.

As a result of this failure the state cannot after June 30th, pay any pensions to idiots and the only way they can be cared for is through the county infirmaries or for relatives to take charge of them. The institute there is so crowded that, according to Superintendent Taylor there is no chance for anyone being admitted except through death of an inmate or through the discharge of one and the latter instances are few and far between.

New Club House

The new club house recently erected near the Chestnut ford on Dix river was formerly opened to its members last Tuesday night. The club is owned jointly by twenty-five young unmarried men of Lancaster and has every convenience, including a large dancing porch, dining room, kitchen and two bed rooms. It is within a few feet of the river affording a fine bathing beach, which will be thoroughly enjoyed by its members and invited guests.

Meeting at Herring

Rev. I. W. Manley is conducting a series of meetings every night at Herring's school house, the services beginning at eight o'clock. The meeting is marked with good attendance and the public is cordially invited to cooperate.

HELD VOID

Court of Appeals Holds the New Registration Law To Be Unconstitutional.

No Registration Therefore On July 10th and 11th.

The Smith-Minor general registration law, passed by the 1922 session of the general assembly, was declared unconstitutional by Judge Rollin Hurst of the court of appeals. All of the judges of the court concurred except Judge Clay, who rendered a dissenting opinion.

The opinion, 7,500 words long, was rendered in a suit brought by J. M. Perkins of Frankfort, seeking an interlocutory injunction against the Franklin county election board and county officials to prevent their carrying out the statewide registration on July 10th and 11th. The injunction was granted in the opinion.

The law was held unconstitutional because it did not provide for special registration days for special elections and because it made no provisions for registering public officials and others who were called away from their voting precincts on registration day by affairs that could not wait and violates Section 6 of the constitution, which provides that all elections shall be free and equal.

The judge held that the general assembly had conformed to all requirements in passage of the bill and that it was necessary that the fact that it had been passed over the governor's veto be noted on its face. The journals of the house and senate are sufficient for this, he said.

Bourne-Douglas

Miss Laura Katherine Bourne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bourne, and Mr. A. V. Douglas, of Paris, were married Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride on the Shakertown road. The impressive ceremony was said by the bride's pastor, Dr. Madison A. Hart. The music was most delightfully rendered by Mrs. Anna Freeman, pianist; Miss Lola Bates, violinist, and Mrs. Guy Jones soloist. Mrs. Jones sang two numbers, "I love you Truly" and "O Promise Me." The house was beautifully decorated in the mid-summer flowers, sweet peas, predominating. The bride and groom came down the stairway together, preceded by Dr. Hart, to the strains of Lohengrin, and the beautiful ring ceremony was said in the parlor, before an improvised altar. The bride was beautiful in tan georgette with hat to match, her corsage was bride's roses and valley lilies. The wedding was followed by an informal reception for a few intimate friends, after which the bride and groom left for a three weeks' trip through the North. Among the out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Miss Irene Bramlett, Paris, Miss Dody Douglas, Paris, daughter of the groom, Miss Fay Acton, Lexington, Mrs. Clarence Withers, Lexington, Mr. Cecil Arnold, Lexington, Miss Rebecca Sistrunk, Lexington, Miss Clarice Harlow, Louisville, Mrs. J. H. Bourne, Mr. Cleveland Bourne, Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wilmot, Lancaster, Miss Sara Wilmot and Mr. Wood, Lancaster, Mrs. Luther Ray, Lexington and Mrs. Herbert Willoughby, Richmond.—Danville Messenger.

Stores May Close

The merchants of Lancaster may close their stores for two hours every afternoon during the Chautauqua program which starts here next Wednesday afternoon. This has been customary in the past and as many of the clerks have purchased season tickets, it is hoped that this arrangement can be carried out. Of course, Saturday afternoon, will be an exception.

More Plums

Mr. J. D. Gulley, who likes to see his name in print brought to this office, a twig twenty-four inches long bearing 32 large green-gage plums. Unfortunate for us the plums were not ripe, but Mr. Gulley has promised this office a basketful of large juicy ones in a few days.

Quiet Fourth

Last Tuesday was a quiet fourth in Lancaster. Most of the stores closed during the day and all of the banks. Many attended the big picnic and ball games at Paint Lick.

GREAT MEETING

Kentucky Press Enjoys Summer Session at Crab Orchard

Senff Named President.

One of the best mid-summer meetings recently held by the Kentucky Press Association, was that held at Crab Orchard last Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Crab Orchard Springs and her general hosts, made the stay of the editors and their friends most pleasant, looking after the comforts of their guests and using every means to entertain them, which they did to perfection. One who had not been to these famous springs during the past few years, was astounded at the improvements that had been made under the new management of Messrs. Haselden and Pickens. Everything clean and new, the dining rooms and its fixtures a credit and an honor to any summer resort in the entire south. The meals were all that could have been asked for and the service the best ever.

The program arranged by those who had charge of this department, was interesting and instructive and taken as a whole, the meeting was a success from every standpoint.

New officers elected by the Association were: President, G. B. Senff; Mt. Sterling; Vice President, L. C. Fitzhugh, Wilmore; Chairman Executive Committee, S. M. Saufley, Richmond; Secretary and Treasurer, J. C. Alcock, Danville (re-elected.) The Executive committee was named as follows:—W. L. Dawson, La Grange, Keen Johnson, Lawrenceburg, Malcolm Hayley, Louisville, and R. L. Elkin, Lancaster.

GREAT DAY

Big Crowd Enjoy Day at Paint Lick, Ky.

Paint Lick entertained about 1,000 people or more in her little city last Tuesday, celebrating the glorious Fourth, with picnics, ball games, tennis matches, etc.

The games scheduled between Paint Lick and Blue Lick began at ten o'clock, resulting in a score of 11 to 10 in favor of the home team. It was hotly contested and pretty evenly matched. The same teams opposed each other in the afternoon, resulting in defeat for Paint Lick by a score of 13 to 9.

During the day a warmly contested game was pulled off between Marksburg and Back Creek, which resulted in a tie score, and owing to the time being short, game had to be called, with the above result.

The good people of this vicinity know how and do entertain you on occasions of this character. The pupils of the Baptist Sunday school had a picnic on the grounds and this made it thoroughly enjoyable.

Seventeen-year Locust

Due in Illinois, Iowa and Indiana

The 17-year locust, or cicada, as it is more properly called, may be expected this year in Illinois and southern Wisconsin, with small broods along the Lakes. In Indiana, on the border of Lake Michigan, and in the southern tier of counties in the State of Michigan, the characteristic whirring noise of the cicada will be heard. A big brood will appear in eastern Iowa.

Unlike the locusts of the Bible, which were really destructive grasshoppers, the 17-year cicada does but little damage of a serious nature. Interest in it is due chiefly to its unusually long life cycle. The Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture will welcome observations on this year's occurrence in order to maintain records, from which is forecast the reappearance of the various broods. There are about 30 broods of the 17-year cicada scattered over the United States in different sections and appearing in different years. From 1924 to 1928 almost no cicada will be seen.

Mind Unsound

Dillard Littrel, who admitted that he set fire to the home of Mrs. Todd Simpson last Saturday night, resulting in the total loss of house and contents, was adjudged insane last Monday morning and was sent to Lexington yesterday. Littrel is a brother of Mrs. Simpson and owned the home jointly with her.

SUCCESSFUL SALE

S. A. Walker, of Real Estate Fame Conducts Great Sale at Somerset.

Our local townsmen, Messrs. Carlton Elkin and S. A. Walker, have been holding some successful sales recently, but the one conducted at Somerset last week, by Mr. Walker seems to have capped the climax from what the Somerset Commonwealth says: about it. Here's what it says:

The big lot sale Tuesday of the Huffaker addition was one of the greatest successes ever pulled off in Somerset in a real estate deal. Every lot was sold at a good price and all purchasers were satisfied, and many business men doubtless now realize their mistake by not having been a purchaser of some of these lots in this wonderful addition. The event was staged by the Johnson-Walker Realty Co., under the direct supervision and management of Mr. S. A. Walker, of Lancaster, Ky., who has previously enjoyed wonderful sale successes in Somerset. Be sure to attend the sale when you see his name on a bill. His name guarantees success as he never offers anything unless it is the very best, and he always sells.

The bidding, under the rapid-fire method of Auctioneer Col. George L. Toombs, who reminds one of the latest model machine guns, was lively and strong, and in addition to the ability of the auctioneer, also proved that this was a most desirable location. A large crowd was on the ground and used good judgment, staying with the auctioneer all day, making keen bids till the last lot was sold. Denney's concert band furnished the music, and Col. J. L. Cowherd, of Shelbyville, Col. Walter Dunn, of Danville, and Col. Carlton Elkin, of Lancaster, were the live ground men who assisted Col. Toombs in putting the sale over so successfully.

NEXT WEDNESDAY

Chautauqua Opens On College Campus

The Redpath Chautauqua opens for a five days program in Lancaster next Wednesday afternoon and it is to be hoped that it will receive the hearty support and co-operation of the citizens of Lancaster and Garrard county, which it has in the past few years.

It is one of the most instructive, elevating, and interesting entertainments ever had in Lancaster and while the program may not include all of the best talent, yet it is cheap at the low admission price which is charged.

The Women's Club has undertaken the sale of the tickets, and workers will canvas the town thoroughly during the intervening days before next Wednesday. The pledges should be redeemed at once and all who have not purchased season tickets should do so.

Tax Commission Upheld.

The Court of Appeals in a case sent up from Fayette county on last Wednesday decided that the State Tax Commissioner cannot go into a county and make a house-to-house visit. The commissioners fail to bring the total up to what is demanded by the commission, however, the Tax Commission may mandamus the County Judge and compel him to re-convene the County Tax Supervisors and they can be compelled to raise the assessments to the amount prescribed by the commissioner. Several counties in the state have refused to meet the demands of the State Tax Commission for increases, but now that the courts have decided that the commission has absolute power to make the increases.

Car Overtures

While returning to Lancaster Tuesday night about ten o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Price, were slightly but not seriously hurt when the Ford Coupe in which they were riding, was overturned near the residence of John Ball on the new Danville pike. The cause of the accident was a broken radius rod, causing the car to get beyond control, overturning at the fill which had recently been widened. Fortunately friends came up and released the occupants, both of whom had received slight injuries. Mr. Price suffered a small cut on the back of his head while Mrs. Price's injuries were much less and not at all painful. The car was badly damaged.

MILLARD WEST

Quits Post As Assistant Commissioner of Prohibition. Goes With Chicago Law Firm.

Dispatches from Washington last Friday stated that Millard F. West, had resigned as assistant commissioner of prohibition and will become the Washington representative of a Chicago firm of lawyers. His resignation became effective at the close of business on June 30th. Mr. West went from Lancaster to Washington about 25 years ago and served for more than 24 years in the Internal revenue service. Recently he was made assistant prohibition commissioner under Roy A. Haynes, and has been acting commissioner part of that time.

In connection with his work in the internal revenue bureau, Mr. West frequently came into contact with former Representative Good of Iowa, who was chairman of the appropriations committee in the last congress and who is head of the Chicago firm with which Mr. West was thought that he was elected for is to be associated here, and it that he was selected for the important Washington post.

While Mr. West's resignation follows recent congressional attacks on the legality of the prohibition unit plan for liquor concentration, it was stated at his office that these criticisms had nothing whatever to do with his resignation.

Baptist Church News

By vote of the church last Sunday morning it was decided to unite with the other churches of the town in a union service every Sunday night during this month and August. It is hoped that by uniting our forces during the summer months our work may be stimulated and carried on more aggressively than it would otherwise. Announcement will be made at the service next Sunday morning as to the place of meeting for the evening services.

We were glad to welcome one new member by letter last Sunday evening, Mrs. George Cox from Mt. Hermon church.

Our Sunday school attendance is still over the 100 mark, but our goal is still 200. Let us combat the epidemic of "law-zee-neas" (French for laziness) by being in our place as teacher or scholar next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Our Superintendent is doing faithful work and deserves the cooperation of every member.

The preaching service at 11 o'clock next Sunday. Topic of the sermon—"Travailleurs or Travellers? Which? We plead for the loyalty in attendance of every member, and earnestly invite the cooperation of others at our services.

A recent utterance of President Harding is noteworthy and we pass it on here. "The great need of the hour is more intimate knowledge of the Bible on the part of all Americans." Our Sunday school, preaching service and B. Y. P. U. are means to increase our knowledge of the Bible, and Christian patriotism will lead us to support them all.

Come with us next Sunday. You will be made welcome.

A Bridegrooms Mistake

At a wedding breakfast recently the conversation had drifted around to the subject of children being out of place at a wedding. Various opinions were expressed until the bridegroom shone out brightly and eclipsed all others. "Well", he said, "I think it should be treated like the no present idea of birthday parties, simply have a line at the bottom of your invitations, 'No Children Expected.' There was a lull around the table no one said a word, no one looked up, few breathed. The bridegroom must have received a kick under the table from his bride for his face was crimson. But he did not let well enough alone and went on to explain. "Well I mean'er, that is you know," he stammered. "I didn't mean'er." But the strain was too much and they all laughed until they cried.

Membership in the Burley Tobacco has passed the 61,000 mark, as shown by the report of Assistant Chief of the Service Division William Collins to the Board of Directors, Friday and the reports of field workers of contracts not sent in but already signed.

Assistant Chief William Collins' figures showed 56,617 growers of burley tobacco signed in the campaign last fall and 4,894 additions since the campaign closed, making a total of 60,421. President and General Manager James C. Stone estimated that 1,000 contracts, signed but not yet sent in to Field Service Headquarters, were in the hands of county chairmen or workers.

Warehouses Only Where Necessary

Director Barker Calls Attention to Fact That Farmers Pay Cost of Plants and Want no Money
Wasted

Lexington, Ky., June 28.—That the money required for the establishment of new warehouses for the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association comes from the pockets of the farmers themselves and that none will be established where not absolutely needed for the interests of the general association were declared in a statement made by Director of Warehouses Ralph M. Barker in discussing the probability of adding to the Association's holdings by the acquisition of new receiving plants.

"Tobacco Growers, in asking for the establishment of new receiving plants," said director Barker "Should bear in mind that it is the money of the growers that pays for these houses and that the cost will come out of the farmers' tobacco. We desire to have a receiving plant at every point where it is necessary, but our members will not uphold us in any policy of establishing plants on any other basis than that."

"The members of the Association want us to proceed with as little cost as possible in the handling of their crops, they want necessary receiving plants and will approve them where such plants are required for the general good but, judging from what a number already have said to me, they will not approve any general plan for the establishment of warehouses just because there are none in the counties which may want them, even though these counties may grow considerable tobacco."

"The Burley Association owns a large number of plants, in some places more than it needs, in others it has none and in some of these places it ought to have at least one. Where such plants may be necessary for property expediting the business of the Association they will be established, but not a plant will be established which the Association can get along without. Growers have already indicated that this sentiment exists practically unanimously among them, and it is the intention of this office to respect that sentiment, for the farmers will have to pay, after all, every dollar of the cost of such plants as are established."

President and General Manager James C. Stone confirmed the report that Scott county, which comprises one of the director districts of the Association, is to get one of the Lexington houses before the tobacco season of 1922 opens.

The Lexington house to be dismantled and moved to Georgetown has not been decided upon, as yet, President Stone said, but Director Barker will reach a decision and have the house moved in ample time for Scott county to have a receiving plant to handle the 1922 crop.

"Scott county grows between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 pounds of tobacco," said President Stone, "and is entitled to a receiving plant. The growers of that county, their bankers and business men have been loyal to the Association, have worked hard for its success and their wishes deserve consideration."

Mr. Stone, who returned from West Virginia, where he spoke in the campaign to sign up that State, said interest was growing there in the co-operative movement, that probably a thousand persons heard his address and that many signed contracts. County organizations are being formed in that territory.

Sale of the preferred stock in the warehousing corporations, in order to give all growers a chance to subscribe, will be continued until July 1st, it was said at the offices of the Association, James C. Wilson and Company, of Louisville, are handling the stock of the warehousing corporation except the central corporations, which is being sold through the Security Trust Company.

Notice To Contractors Bids Wanted

Sealed bids will be received by the Fiscal Court of Garrard County at the Court House, Lancaster, Ky., until 12 o'clock, for the improvement of the Lancaster-Lexington road beginning at the Porter Rich farm and extending four miles north on the said road.

Friday, July 7th, 1922

The improvement will consist of scarifying, ditching and re-surfacing to a width of 16 feet with crushed limestone.

Plans and specifications for said work may be secured from the County Board Engineer at Lancaster, Ky.

All Fees Above $5,000 To Go Back to County

All fees in excess of $5,000 and the salary of necessary deputies and assistants, collected by sheriffs of Kentucky, must be turned into county treasuries and go to the payment of the cost of county government, the court of appeals decided recently. The question was discussed in a voluminous opinion written by Judge Moorman and concurred in by the whole court, reversing the action of the Fayette circuit court, which held that Paul Shipp could not bring suit against J. Waller Rodes and T. C. Bradley, former sheriffs of Fayette county.

The opinion affects many counties throughout the state in which sheriffs have been receiving more than $5,000 a year in salary from fees. Officials say it will save the state and counties many thousands of dollars annually. The case was the out-growth of agitation for saving money to the state and counties and is backed by farmers' organizations throughout

The court of appeals in its opinion held that all excess fees must go into the county treasury. It expressly stated that it was not deciding in this case, whether or not the state could recover from the county its prorata of fees paid the sheriffs in excess of $5,000 and expenses.

The county fiscal courts are charged by the court with the enforcement of the constitutional provisions, in its opinion. It says that the sheriffs are required to make returns to the fiscal courts and that through these an exact accounting for his office can be obtained. Through the law requiring that the fiscal courts approve the appointment of deputies, the salaries the number of deputies can be regulated, the court said.

The court confined its remarks to the Bradley case, saying that it also was decisive of the Rodes case. The suit by Shipp was to recover excess fees for 1914 to 1917 from Bradley and for 1918, 1919 and 1920 from Rodes. The opinion decides that Shipp has the right to sue in this case and says that recovery can be had.

It was claimed in the Bradley case that in 1914 he received from the state $12,090.74; county, $13,515.04, and more than $6,000 from private litigants.

The above ruling, it is said, will affect the sheriff's office in Montgomery county, not only in regard to the present incumbent, but also his predecessor, and it is likely he will be forced to pay back into the county treasury several thousand dollars.

By the court's decision many counties in the state will be affected and, it is said, thousands of dollars will be saved the commonwealth annually.

S.S.S. Fills Out Hollow Cheeks, Thin Limbs!

Men and women—whether you will ever bring you up to your normal, just-right weight depends on the number of blood cells in your blood. That's all there is to it. It's a scientific fact. If your blood-cell factory isn't working right, you will be run-down, thin, your blood will be thin, your heart will be broken out with pimples, blackheads and eruptions. S. S. S. keeps your blood-cell factory working full time. It helps build new blood-cells. That's why S. S. S. builds up thin, run-down people, puts flesh on your bones, strengthens your jaws, arms, neck, limbs, the whole body. It puts the "pink" in your cheeks. It takes the hollowness from the eyes and it feels Father Time by smoothing out wrinkles in men and women by "plumping" them up. S. S. S. removes old blood-cells. While you are getting plump, your skin eruptions, pimples, blackheads, acne, rheumatism, rash, etc., blisters are being removed. The medicinal ingredients of S. S. S. are guaranteed purely vegetable. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical.

"S. S. S. is for sale at McRoberts Drug Store."

Trouble seldom bothers the person who is not looking for it.

Telling people to go to hell is poor policy. The world admires a leader.

Any fool can recognize a good thing when the other fellow has it.

The fellow who earns his pay invariably gets paid for what he earns.

Some people are always looking for a scrap and never recognize it when it is offered to them.

There are so many pretty girls in this town it is difficult for a young fellow to decide which one he wants.

THEODOSIA

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

When Theodosia came in, I looked apprehensively toward our stepmother. I knew Dosie well, and the flush of her cheek and the sparkle of her eye spoke excitement and adventure.

My sister has ever walked a charmed way; if, when a mere child, Dosie started out upon some prosy errand, it would be sure to turn into a delightful hour of adventure.

When our father unexpectedly—and we thought unfortunately—married again, it seemed that there were to be no more delightful hours for either of us.

You have read of the old-time proverbial stepmother? Well, ours was that kind.

Dosie, I knew at once, would not be dominated, even if she had to resort to diplomacy to avoid it. So, for me, life became a mediocre affair between my good, but sadly influenced father and my lovely, willful little sister.

Theodosia plumped herself into a chair, and smiled her cherubic smile. "Where?" demanded our stepmother. "have you been?"

"I was walking down Linden avenue," began Dosie, "when I met Ora Armour. She asked me to walk with them—Douglas Stewart was with her."

"I thought so," our stepmother's tone was cold. That she objected to Douglas Stewart as Dosie's suitor most unreasonably, or that she objected to suitors in general for either of us, was well known.

"You met him by appointment, I suppose?"

"No," Dosie replied, "it just happened."

I glanced up apprehensively at my sister's next remark.

"Orn and Douglas were going to a wedding—a church wedding, and I consented to go with them."

Stepmother raised her hands in horror. "Don't tell me, Theodosia Warren, that you actually went to a church wedding in a pink cambric dress?"

"I did," Dosie confessed.

"And Ora?"

"Ora went home to put on her white crepe," Dosie admitted, "but you see, Ora was to be bridegroom; she gave me half of her bouquet. It was beautiful, pink roses. The wedding was a very small affair. Douglas and Will Herron wore afternoon attire, because they were going on to the reception at Ora's afterward."

My little sister's eyes grew softly reminiscent. "It was a beautiful marriage. Phyllis, my one regret was that you were not there; but you see, I just happened to be there, myself."

"That's all right, dear," I assured her.

"I, for one," stepmother said severely, "am dismayed, Theodosia, that you were there."

"The light" went on my sister dreamily, "shone through the golden glass of the church window, in the liveliest, most brilliant way, and the bridegroom's face looked almost saintly, his eyes so dark, his face so white."

"Who?" stepmother inquired, "was the groom?"

Dosie answered slowly, "Douglas Stewart."

Stepmother leaned forward with a start. There was relief, and a not pleasing triumph, on her face.

"So," she said, "it was Douglas Stewart who was married. I don't wonder that you avoided telling us that on the first place. You realize now that I spoke the truth when I told your father that he was merely amusing himself, in flirtation with you. I hope you are well cured of your folly, Theodosia. Whom did you say he married?"

Dosie smoothed the folds of her cambric frock.

"Me," she answered succinctly.

Stepmother almost screamed.

"What! Theodosia Warren," she cried.

"He begged me to settle things up as we walked along," Dosie explained, "and Ora added her persuasions to his. So, while she went to put on her white dress, Douglas, Will and I got the license. The old minister who married us was a dear—he's a friend of father's."

She turned to me, with a little more plea for forgiveness. "Will, dearest," she begged, "get into your prettiest dress, and come to the reception that time is giving for me."

She looked back at our stepmother.

"You may come too, if you like," she added graciously. Stepmother arose quickly. I knew that she was glad of the chance to show her new finery in big Armour house. "I suppose it would appear better, and help to silence discussion," she remarked, as she went up the stairs.

I bent to kiss my little sister. I was clutching up a pleat of the small Dosie's soft, pink cambric frock—the roses in her arms, the golden light of the church window glorifying her face.

"Will," she whispered, "I want only beautiful things to happen for you hereafter."

"Valuable Asset."

"How many in your family?" asked the census taker.

"Nine dawgs, fourteen chilun an' the old woman," answered the resident of Squirrel Hollow.

"Dogs don't count."

"They do in these here parts, stranger. Chilun come an' chillun go an' a wife is sorer wished on a mornin' but as long as the mountains are full of possums an' coons, dawgs is dawgs."

American Legion News

New Orleans—Rolling along the French landscape in the diminutive freight cars marked "Forty Men or Eight Horses," the problems of transportation and housing were solved by many American Legion members in the World War days.

When the Legion Veterans come to New Orleans for their annual national convention, October 16 to 21, several thousands will revert to their railroad hotel. The New Orleans convention committee will establish a hotel on wheels, with a housing capacity of nearly 14,000 men.

Pullman coaches lighted with electricity will supersede the straw-littered

French box cars. There will be dining car facilities, showers and all the conveniences of a modern hotel. Parking yards will be located a short distance from the downtown district. The New Orleans yards can take care of 465 Pullman cars.

The railroads have established a rental and parking charge which will compare favorably with the railroad hotel rates. They will charge $54 a day for each car and $12 a day for parking. This will cover all pullman tariffs from the visitor's home town to the convention and return.

Figuring on a maximum trip of ten days, the Legionnaire will obtain his "bunk" for about $2 a day, including Pullman charges en route to New Orleans.

The following cities have chartered

Pullmans for the convention: Minneapolis, twenty-five cars; Louisville, fifteen; Washington, ten; Jacksonville, Fla., ten; Cleveland, seven; Detroit, six; Atlanta, five; Birmingham, four, and Pittsburgh, three cars.

The sleeping cars will be operated after the pattern of a miniature city.

Each car will be a house. One railroad will establish a clubhouse with shower baths, a barber shop and a laundry agency. The small city will be thoroughly lighted and supplied with water; sewage disposal from the cars has been arranged for, and walks will be laid.

With the creation of the hostelry on wheels, convention officials believe that better facilities will be provided for men from the same Legion departments and posts to enjoy the comradeship of the journey and to hold group meetings during their stay in the convention city.

In mentioning the great men of the age it is wisdom to place your husband's name at the top. He will be ripe for a touch.

Open Retail Markets Benefit Both Buyer and Producer.

dealers. Such a market, if it is a "producers' market," furnishes an opportunity for direct dealing between producers and consumers. Open retail markets may also admit hucksters, or wagon and pushcart peddlers as salesmen. These dealers are usually admitted under certain restrictions.

The United States Department of Agriculture has given much attention to the subject of public markets, their establishment and operation, as an economical and satisfactory meeting place for the country producer and the city buyer. A new Department Bulletin, No. 102, entitled "Open Types of Public Markets," is now available for distribution, and copies may be had free by writing to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The bulletin discusses the function of public markets, their ownership and control, establishment and operation. It says that public markets are not agencies to replace other means of distribution of farm produce—they are supplementary agencies to aid, under favorable conditions, in efficient distribution.

BEES ARE VERY PROFITABLE

Common Honey Gatherer Is by Far Best Carrier of Pollen—Scatter Through Orchard.

The common honey bee is by far the best carrier of pollen and it will pay the fruit grower to keep bees, even though he may not care to go into the honey business. Hives, however, are a very profitable side-line for the orchardist, especially if alfalfa fields are available to work on after the blooming season of fruit has passed. About one hive of bees to an acre of bearing orchard should be provided.

Preferably the hives should be scattered as widely as possible throughout the orchard during the blooming season. Experiment and experience have shown that little reliance can be placed on the efficacy of wind and of insects other than the honey bee in effecting the transfer of pollen from tree to tree, or in fact from flower to flower.

SUCKERS ON CORN HARMLESS

Many Farmers Have Mistaken Idea That Earless Stalks Are Hindrance to Growth.

Many farmers are possessed with the idea that the suckers or earless stalks which grow from an ear-bearing stalk of corn are a hindrance to the best growth of the latter; and valuable hours are sometimes spent removing them. But experiments during two successive years on Nebraska farms demonstrated that corn with the suckers left undisturbed outyielded that from which the suckers had been removed. Their leaves, like the others, would seem to perform useful office in absorbing nutritive elements from the atmosphere for the benefit of the ear on the main stalk.

PUBLIC MARKET AIDS BUYER AND PRODUCER

May Be Open Space Where Farmers Sell to Consumer.

Some Cities Have Erected Sheds Along Street Curbs—Supplementary Agencies to Assist in Efficient Distribution.

Open retail markets constitute the simplest and least expensively operated of all types of public markets. In its simplest form a market of this type may be merely a designated length of curb, a section of a broad street, a vacant lot, where, under slight supervision, farmers may group their wagons and sell to consumers.

In its highest development, such a market may consist of a paved tract with raised walls covered with substantial sheds to protect teams, wares, buyers, and sellers from the weather. The shed may even be of a type that in bad weather may be made practicable into an enclosed building by the use of rolling doors. A few cities have erected sheds along street curbs for the protection of open markets, but for the most part curb markets are unprotected and sheds are constructed only in markets situated on special market tracts.

The essential feature of a retail market is the restriction of purchases to consumers as distinguished from

Mixing Cement

With Soil New Idea in Road Building

Mixing cement with certain types of soil to alter the characters of the soils and make them more suitable for road surfacing and subgrades is an experiment recently conducted by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, which is now proving its value in actual use. The treatment was first suggested and tried out at Arlington Experiment Station of the bureau. Results warranted a field test, and it was arranged with the California State Highway Department to try it on the adobe soil there.

A part of a Federal-aid project in Saline County was selected for the test. The dry soil was well broken up and harrowed to a depth varying from 6 to 12 inches and mixed with cement in the proportions of 1 part cement to 10 parts soil and 1 part cement to 20 parts soil. It was intended to water and roll the surface, but rain prevented. One section was allowed to remain untreated for purposes of comparison.

A recent inspection showed that the untreated section was badly broken up, due to the usual shrinkage cracks characteristic of adobe soils. The treated sections were in good condition and showed no shrinkage cracks. The treatment is not intended to make a hard surface like concrete, but to alter the properties of the soil so that it will be stable and lessen the effects of moisture.

California plans to conduct additional experiments, which will be observed in detail by the bureau and cost data obtained.

Keeping Best Calves

FOR REPLACING OLD STOCK

While calves from low-producing cows are saved to maintain the herds on some farms, on other farms and in other sections, where higher-producing cattle are kept, calves from 300-pound cows by purebred bulls are often veined because no market is found for them as dairy stock. This is an economic waste which, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture, the extension organization of Coos County, Oregon, is striving to eliminate.

About 30 calves from the best stock in Coos County were saved last year by arrangements made with farm bureaus of other counties to take them when two weeks old at $12 a head, crated and delivered at the express office. Arrangements also were made recently for a representative of the Klamath County extension organization to spend 30 days locating new-born calves of good stock and finding a dairymen to feed them for two weeks before shipment to farmers in his own county.

The reports say that calves 2 weeks old are shipped safely as far as 500 miles, or 36 hours' travel; day-old calves can rarely be shipped.

SEE GAINES AT ONCE

With the recent reductions of hail storm insurance rates on growing tobacco, in the face of the enormous losses to growers within the last four or five years, every grower can afford to protect himself to the limit and, with safety, go into the business of producing a crop that requires so much money, time and labor, as does tobacco, that should be insured against loss by a hail storm.

Now that so many growers have gone into an organization for a more economical, business-like way of handling their crops, and the insurance companies have so lowered rates on hail insurance, there is no reason in the world for any grower to neglect the protection of his crop by ample insurance.

Better see your insurance agent right away and have him protect your crop, which is likely to be destroyed any day by a hail storm. Policies become effective noon, July 10th.

A Plain Case of Duty

Don't neglect the children. They may not exert any great influence upon the community life of today, but in a few short years they will be directing the affairs of the community while we will be looking on—or will have passed on.

As we train them today, so will they be then. And as they are then, so will we of today be judged.

We cannot escape our duty. It is plain and squarely before us. We may shirk it, and squirm out of it, but in the end we must pay, even in person or in memory.

The child does not come into this world of its own volition and it should not be left in its own devices.

That which we create we should protect and foster and bring as near to a state of perfection as is humanly possible. Nothing else will suffice in the eyes of Him who created mankind.

The home without children is not without a duty to the children of other homes. They form an integral part of the community, and as such are entitled to the co-operation and encouragement of the remainder of the community.

The child may not say much in the presence of its elders, but it sees much and remembers much of what it sees and hears.

Thus are its impressions formed, and these are the beacon lights that beckon it on to a life of honor or of ignominy.

"Remember the days of thy youth."

Though an adult today, you were a child once yourself.

There are other children around you.

Very few people walk in the valley of the shadow of death. They foot it until they get out.

Grandmother used Mustard Blisters to Relieve Congested Conditions

Grandmother also walked to town if she wished to do any shopping. Do you wish to return to Grandmother's times or take an elevated car? This comparison is brought before you for the simple purpose of illustrating why people of today that are up-to-date use MINTOL, in preference to using mustard plasters and smelly mustard creams.

For colic in the head catarrh, grip, bronchitis or pneumonia simply apply a hot, wet towel to the throat and lungs for five minutes then apply MINTOL, rubbing thoroughly in for five minutes and cover the parts with a hot, dry flannel, so arranged as to allow the vapors arising from the MINTOL, to be inhaled. This treatment will be found as much an improvement over the old-fashioned mustard blisters and creams as the elevated is over walking.

NOTICE:—MINTOL is the latest scientific discovery for the treatment of all congested conditions such as occur in Spanish Influenza, Grip, Bronchitis and Bronchial affections. It kills the Influenza and Grip germ and acts as an antiseptic in healing inflamed throat or nostrils. For hoarseness, a little of the MINTOL applied to the back of the tongue will give instant relief, 35c, 60c and $1.25 a jar. If your druggist cannot supply you we will send you a jar on receipt of price. The Home Relief Laboratories, Boston, Mass.

Stealing Traps

May Lead to Heavy Fine or Prison

Trap stealing interferes with the work against predatory animals carried on by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture in the Northwest. Stealing Government property of any kind is a serious offense, for which a fine of $5,000 may be imposed, or a sentence of five years in jail, or both. There are at present two offenders in the State of Washington who have been arrested on complaint of Biological Survey hunters, and who are under bond awaiting trial. Others under suspicion are being watched.

The offense of trap stealing, in addition to the fact that all Government property must be respected, is particularly serious, because it may undo weeks or months of careful work.

Predatory animals destroy annually many thousands of dollars' worth of valuable live stock. They are difficult to catch, and the hunter may have spent a great deal of time following the tracks of a destructive wolf or coyote and may have set his trap at the very best point to intercept his prey, only to have it stolen. The intrinsic value of the steel trap or the pelt of the animal caught in it is a cash loss to the Government, and the potential loss of future live stock through setting a dangerous animal at liberty or interfering with its capture is impossible to estimate.

Hard-surface Roads

Should be at Least 18 Feet Wide

A minimum width of 18 feet for hard-surface roads is recommended by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The maximum width of truck body generally permitted is 8 feet, and 5½ feet is the ordinary clearance width of automobiles. At an average speed of 30 miles an hour it is unreasonable to expect the driver of an automobile to drive with the wheels closer than 1½ feet to the edge of the pavement, says the bureau. For trucks at an average speed of 15 miles an hour, this distance should not be less than 1-3-1 feet on account of the great width of the rear wheel. Three feet seems to be a minimum safe clearance between bodies. Inasmuch as a certain amount of truck traffic is to be expected on all main country roads, the minimum width of surface should be 18 feet to provide these clearances when an automobile meets a truck.

Where the frequency with which trucks pass each other becomes a big factor, as in the neighborhood of large cities, the minimum width of pavement should be 20 feet to provide a clearance of 3½ feet and a safe distance of wheels from edge of pavement.

Technicalities of Beekeeping Shown in
New Motion
Pictures

Bee keepers will be interested in a new motion picture prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture showing the best practice in handling bees and the control of bee diseases. The film, which is called "Keeping Bees at Work," is intended to supplement a picture, entitled "Bees—How They Live and Work," issued some time ago for more popular use.

The new picture shows the need for requeening the colony from time to time, the way to prepare the bees for wintering, the time to unpack the hives, the control of the swarm, and other details of management. The fact that the Bureau of Entomology will examine samples of combs to identify disease and advise on their control is brought out.

The film is in one reel, and may be borrowed by extension workers and others entitled to the privilege, or prints may be purchased for approximately the cost of making them, which is about $37.

In loving remembrance of my dear beloved brother, Alpha D. Scott, who died May 28th 1922.

Interesting Japanese Insect

Found in Connecticut Nursery

The Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture has been interested to find an oriental beetle, which is ordinary a sugarcane pest, apparently established in a Connecticut nursery where miscellaneous flower and fruit stock is grown. Specimens have been collected in the nursery for two successive years. The insect seems to be doing no damage and there is no reason for any concern over its presence.

It has identified as Anomala orientalis Water, an insect which gave a great deal of trouble in Hawaii about 10 years ago. It is a native

Chop toasted raisins very fine and work into them a scant third of their weight in granulated sugar, using a few drops of strained honey to hold together. Mould into any desired shape and dip into melted, unsweetened chocolate. Lay well apart on waxed paper until quite cold and firm.

Forbiddingly, as usual, he accepted the girl's merry salutes, in silence received her descriptive information of the picturesque country.

Smilingly indifferent she dropped into song. When she had disregarded for some time he repeated "Miss De Gray." Stephen abruptly asked if that was not her name.

"I am called so frequently just Marette," the girl laughingly explained, "that I almost forgot the other."

"This spot will do then, Marette," he ordered perceptively.

It was a delightful spot and Stephen was quite out of breath, following his swift and tireless guide. From the page of his book he long and surreptitiously regarded her. She was as interesting as charming, this calmly superior woodland person. Stephen had caught a resentful toss of her head at his ordering. Her pretty head now against the tree, she amused herself initiating and answering the calls of birds.

Then suddenly she turned on him a volley of questions. "Where did he come from, and how long did he intend to stay among them?"

"I like this spot," he said at length, decidedly. "Entertain yourself as you choose, Marette. I shall remain until evening."

"I," Marette quietly returned, "must return home directly after luncheon." "We will stay, as it pleases me," the master-mind firmly replied. "You have been engaged as my guide."

Morette laid out his luncheon, across the white cloth her dark eyes mocked him.

"Directly I have eaten," she repeated, "I must go."

She was as good as her word. Stephen, looking absently up from an unenstommed day dream, saw the flush of her crimson face like a flitting bird for down the trail.

The wilderness threatened at nightfall. Knowledge came to Stephen. There was sorcery which even money might not buy; there were orders which might not always be obeyed—no hour of helplessness to the most resourceful man—the stars were out; how still, how terribly still, it was.

"Well," asked a sweet vibrant voice, "are you ready to go back with me now, Stephen Kendall?"

Stephen jumped to his feet to greet the girl.

"Quite ready," he said, and laughed. "I am authoritatively published for my profession."

"Who are you, Marette?" he softly questioned.

As gently she answered him: "You have heard of Marette, the singer? I come back here often, to visit my father in the beloved hills."

"And this time you will stay as long as I? For I think that I may have grown hard and crabbish waiting for that one woman whom only now I have, love, and the one woman, little Marette. It is wondrous strange that I should know you so soon to be that woman, but true—"

"Perhaps," said Marette, his girl.

THE GUIDE

By MILDRED WHITE

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

When Stephen Kendall's physician ordered him away for a rest the office staff hoped to join in the cure. For all the dominating Stephen had been under a strain so had his long suffering associates.

Stephen was naturally a master. In his mother's house his word was law, and one maiden who had secretly adored him dried her tears at his departure in unconscious relief.

Yet the big successful man had many compensating attractions; his manner diffuses as tenderly winning as a child.

The place designated by his physician as possessing healing and distracting power was an isolated country of dangerous paths and unexpected beauty. This doctor gave to Stephen a letter of introduction to old Gene De Gray, the mountain guide, who, he was sure, would also take his patient to board.

But when the long journey ended and Stephen Kendall sought the substantial cottage in the wood it was, to his displeased surprise, a young woman who opened the door—a comely young woman, undoubtedly, but he had wished above all things to avoid the sex exacting conventional attire and manners.

Therefore Stephen frowned and asked in his usual tone of disapproval: "Does Gene De Gray live here?" and tiny I engage his services as guide? I would also like to secure board with him if possible."

The young woman calmly read Stephen's letter of introduction and glanced up from its perusal with a considering smile.

"We may be able to take you for Doctor Gray's sake," she condescendingly agreed. "My father being unable to do so at present, I shall have to act as your guide."

"I am quite competent," she answered his dissenting stare. "I have roamed these hills since childhood. I was born an' ra here."

Stephen regarded the bright face amazedly, the girl's tone, as her appearance, was so out of keeping with her primitive surroundings.

She it was, he found upon the following morning, who had cooked their delectable breakfast; she who, clad in corduroy trousers, later awaited to escort him over the hills.

Then, pleasing, shrewd old mountaineer, waved to them as they started with luncheon up the trail.

Forbiddingly, as usual, he accepted the girl's merry salutes, in silence received her descriptive information of the picturesque country.

Smilingly indifferent she dropped into song. When she had disregarded for some time he repeated "Miss De Gray." Stephen abruptly asked if that was not her name.

While the careful housewife usually labels her jellies, jams, canned fruits, and vegetables for her own later information, the United States Department of Agriculture suggests that if she intends to sell any of her products she should consult the State food authorities as to the regulations concerning weight or measure and ingredients and the proper labels to be used.

Mother-To-Be, Read This—

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers. From this moment on, cast from your mind all dread and fear, and feel every day as the months roll by that great freedom from much of the suffering which thousands of expectant mothers undergo, unnecessarily. And when the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my third child I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a paroxysm; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes."

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally to the abdomen, back and hips. It aids the muscles and tissues to expand easily. It penetrates quickly. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. It is safe. There is no substitute. Avoid useless greases sometimes recommended by the unknown. "Mother's Friend" is sold by druggists everywhere.

NOTE—Write for valuable free illustrated book, "Motherhood and the Baby," containing important information which every expectant mother should have and all about "Mother's Friend." Send 25 cents, to McRoberts Drug Store, Lancaster, Ky.

Especial Precautions as to Cleanliness on the Part of Those Who Handle Milk Are Strongly Urged.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The consumer, rather than the producer, the distributor of milk, or the manufacturer of dairy products is the person for whose use a new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1297, Milk and Its Uses in the Home, has recently been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Milk is indispensable in the diet of children, because its solids are in such form that they can be easily utilized by the body, and because it is one of the best sources of the lime needed to build bone and teeth, and of vitamin A, a substance essential to health and normal growth. For adults also milk is an important supplementary food. It should be given scrupulous care in the home.

Milk and Its Uses.

Milk is an important food, because it contains proteins for tissue forming, fat and sugar for body fuel, and minerals, particularly phosphorus and lime, for building and repairing bones and other tissues. Milk is much richer in lime than most other common foods. A cupful of milk, says the bulletin, contains at least seven times as much lime as two medium sized potatoes, and nearly twenty times as much lime as two slices of white bread or four ounces of average beef. This is one of the reasons why it is such an excellent food for children for bone and tooth building.

Vitamins are recently discovered constituents of food. Relatively little is known about the nature of vitamins save that they are indispensable for normal health and growth, and that if they are left out of the diet for a long period so called "deficiency diseases" may develop. Absence of vitamin A is believed to induce rickets. Vitamin E is thought to prevent polyneuritis and beriberi. Milk is exceptionally valuable for providing vitamin A, and supplies vitamin E in abundance. Perfectly fresh raw milk often supplies vitamin C, but its scurvy-preventing power may be lost when it is heated or aged.

Each child should have a full quart of milk a day, if possible.

Reasons for Pasteurization.

While certified raw milk is usually the cleanest milk obtainable, it usually costs a little more than ordinary milk. Good pasteurized milk is satisfactory for children. If the juice of oranges, canned or raw tomatoes, or certain other vegetables and fruits is given to provide vitamin C. Directions for home pasteurization are given in the bulletin, together with an explanation of how bacteria get into milk, the harm they cause, and the effect of careless handling upon them.

A great many kinds of bacteria have been found in milk. Some of them cause the formation of lactic acid, which gives sour milk its characteristic flavor, while others cause milk to putrefy if allowed to stand long enough. The bacteria that causes serious diseases may also get into milk, and are sometimes spread in this way, resulting in epidemics. Special precautions as to cleanliness on the part of those who produce and handle milk are strongly urged.

Just take an old broom and cut the straws off as shown in the sketch, shorten and sharpen the handle and drive it into the ground beside the walk just outside the house. PREVENT CHICKS PILING UP

One of Greatest Single Causes of Loss Among Youngsters—Sweating is Injurious.

The greatest single source of loss among baby chicks after they have safely passed the critical first two or three weeks and are well on the road to proper development, lies in the chance of their piling up some night, smothering to death or sweating. Sweating causes them to lose their feathers and the strain involved in growing a new coat is almost certain to result in a stunted and worthless chick.
